UNION PARTY NOMINATES!

It is in Opposition to the Regular Republican Party.

YERKES FOR THE SUPREME COURT

Elisha M. Coray, Jr., Named for State Treasurer, and It is Understood Palm, the Democratic Candidate, Will Withdraw.

THE PHILADELPHIA CITY TICKET

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—The first State and City conventions of the Union party, which has been organized in opposition to the regular republican organization in the state and city, were held here yesterday and the following tickets were placed in the field :

STATE.

For Judge of the Supreme Court—Judge Harman Yerkes, of Bucks county; Democrat and the nominee of the Democratic State convention.

State Treasurer—Elisha A. Coray, Jr., of Luzerne county ; Independent Republican.

CITY.

For District Attorney—P. F. Rothermel, Jr.; Republican and present incumbent.

Recorder of Deeds—John Virdin; Republican and present incumbent.

Controller—John M. Walton; Republican and present incumbent.

Clerk of Quarter Sessions Court—Frank A. Hartranft; Democrat.

Judges of Common Pleas Court No. 5—G. Harry Davis, Republican, and Henry Budd, Democrat.

Members of the Board of Revision of Taxes—Simon Gratz, Republican, and Rinaldo A. Lukens, Democrat, both present incumbents.

The city ticket is identical with that named by the Municipal League Monday night, and the same candidates will be nominated tonight by the town meeting of the Pattison wing of the Democratic party which has broken away from the regular democratic organization because the latter body refused to fuse with the Union party.

The State convention delegates selected a full State Central committee of which ex-Director of Public Safety Frank M. Riter, of this city, was elected chairman. The campaign in both the city and the state will be pushed from now on with great vigor. There was not the slightest friction in the convention, both Republicans and Democrats vieing with each other in honoring the candidates selected.

It is understood that in a short time Andrew J. Palm, of Crawford county, the Democratic nominee for State Treasurer will withdraw in favor of Coray, thus making fusion between the State Democratic organization and the Union party complete.

In its platform it says among other things :

"The Union party has been called into being for the single purpose of overthrowing the evil combination now in control in the State and electing men without regard to affiliations who will administer with simple honesty and ability the office to which they are elected. It does not aim to sever citizens from their affiliation with the great parties that are divided upon questions of national politics. Its struggle is for an honest ballot and for the restoration of integrity and capacity in state and municipal affairs. We heartily commend the emphatic expressions of the Democratic State convention in favor of a closer union between that organization and all others of different political convictions who are ready to make patriotic and earnest efforts to regenerate the government of both city and state; and we welcome the aid of this great party and of all good citizens and organizations in the cause we have at heart.

"We especially condemn the revolutionary acts of the late Legislature in summarily deposing the municipal officers of cities of the second class, whereby the people of those cities were disfranchised for a period of nearly two years and denied any voice in the control of their own local affairs.

"We denounce the secret plans and the legislation that brought them to fruition, whereby franchises of incalculable value have been voted away by the Legislature and by councils, and also the executive officials who have used the power of their great offices to consummate the wrong inflicted upon the whole body of the people."

New Pension Rule.

Pension attorneys, justices of the peace, notaries public and aldermen have been notified of a new rule of the pension department. It is of considerable value to widows of soldiers, and is as follows :

Section 3. That if any officer or enlisted man who served ninety days or more in the army of the United States during the late war of the rebellion, and who was honorably discharged has died, or shall hereafter die leaving a widow without means of support other than her daily labor and an actual net income not exceeding $250 per year, or minor children under the age of sixteen years, such widow shall, upon due proof of her husband's death without proving his death to be the result of his army service, be placed on the pension roll from the date of the application thereof under this act at the rate of $8 per month during her widowhood, and shall also be paid $2 per month for each child of such officer or enlisted man under sixteen years of age; and in case of the death or remarriage of the widow, leaving a child or children of such officer or enlisted man under the age of sixteen years, such pension shall be paid such child or children until the age of sixteen; Provided, That in case a minor child is insane, idiotic, or otherwise physically or mentally helpless, the pension shall continue during the life of said child, or during the period of such disability and this proviso shall apply to all pensions heretofore granted or hereafter to be granted under this or any further statue; and such pensions shall commence from the date of application therefore after the passage of this act; And provided further, That said widow shall have married said soldier prior to the passage of the said act of June 27, 1890.

Fifty Years Married.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ward, of Baileyville, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home in that place last Saturday at the noon hour. The clergyman, Rev. Hughes, of Baileyville, who performed their marriage ceremony fifty years ago, was present, with Samuel T Irvin, William H. Irvin and Mrs. Olewine who were wedding guests upon that occasion.

Four sons and two daughters were present to rejoice in the happy event, Warren, of Baileyville; Isaac and Elliott, of Washington county; Irvin, of Altoona; Mrs. Book, of Harrisburg, and Annie who lives with her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Ward were the recipients of hearty congratulations from their neighbors and friends and the anniversary was an occasion for a glad and happy time. A splendid collation was served to the large number of guests.

Mrs. McKinley's Friends Hopeful.

Canton, September 25.—Friends and relatives of Mrs. McKinley have a more substantial foundation for their hopes this evening than they have had at any time since apprehension of a collapse under the burden of her deep sorrow was aroused. Dr. Rixy Tuesday night added to his usual statement that she is doing as well as could be expected and that, if there was any change, it was in the way of improvement. The morning visit to the cemetery had been followed by rather an extended drive into the country.

Extending Telephone Lines.

The poles for the extension of the Commercial telephone lines are being set between Charlton and Jesrey Shore, and as soon as the wire is strung Bellefonte will be in communication with the east by that line. The North and West Branch telephone company will make connections with the United telephone and telegraph company at Jersey Shore and Muncy on Oct. 15. The work of extending the lines is being pushed as rapidly as possible, and a large force of men are employed.

THE PANAMA CANAL

Offer of Sale to be Made to Government

MR. HUTIN ON HIS WAY HERE

Unless the Owners Dispose of It to the United States a Waterway Through Nicaragua Will Be Built.

PRICE ASKED 154,000,000

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—M. Hutin, president of the French Panama Canal Company, is expected to reach Washington some time within the next three weeks and he may bring with him an offer from the Panama Canal Company to sell its property to the United States. So far, although the French Company has kept lobbyists here in Washington to oppose the Nicaragua Canal, it has not offered to sell its property to the United States. The purpose of the French Company has been to prevent the United States from undertaking to construct the Nicaragua Canal, on the theory that the defeat of such a proposition in Congress would increase the value of the shares of the Panama Company and thus enable its shareholders to sell out at a big profit.

The only proposition that was ever made to the United States by the Panama Company was that our Government should purchase shares in the French Company, and that the United States would then be allowed to name a certain number of the directors. Such a proposition would receive no support whatever in Congress. Any canal that the United States builds or takes any stock in will belong wholly to this country. President Roosevelt is very decided in that view. Hence, if the Panama people expect longer to delay action by Congress they will be disappointed.

The negotiation of a treaty with Great Britain in regard to the canal is about completed. There is every reason to believe that the treaty will be satisfactory to the Senate and that it will be promptly ratified. Then the way will be clear for Congress to go ahead and pass the bill for a canal through Nicaragua, on which work will begin as soon as satisfactory arrangements are made with the Nicaraguan and Costa Rican Governments. The Panama Canal people are therefore at the end of their tether. They will have to sell to the United States or else the Nicaragua Canal will be undertaken by our Government, which will result in the abandonment of the Panama project.

M. Hutin is expected to bring with him an offer of sale for the Panama Canal property to the United States. It is said that he will ask $150,000,000. The Walker commission has reported that the Panama Canal could be completed at a sum considerably less than the Nicaragua Canal could be constructed. If the French offer to sell at a price not differing greatly from the difference between the cost of completing the Panama Canal and that of constructing the Nicaragua Canal our Government might purchase the Panama Canal. But it would not pay probably at the outside more than $50,000,000, if that much, for the property of the Panama company. Hence, if M. Hutin comes here with any idea of getting $154,000,000 or half of that sum he might as well remain at home, as it is very certain that no such offer would be accepted or even entertained.

Voting Machine Exhibited Here This Week.

J. Hile Myers, a former well known citizen of Bellefonte, but now of Rochester, N. Y., is in Bellefonte this week upon the occasion of the annual convention of the County Commissioners of Pennsylvania, exhibiting the voting machine of which he is the inventor. The voting machine used in New York state with such success and general approval is Mr. Myer's invention we believe.

As there is a possibility of a voting machine taking the place of the ballot sheet in our elective system in Pennsylvania and as the question of the change is for the citizens to determine it is indeed a fortunate circumstance that gives us the opportunity of a personal investigation of the merits of the voting machine. Mr. Myers invites the public to witness the exhibition of his invention and it is to be hoped that all who can will embrace the opportunity to do so. In this way we will acquire information that will be of service to us when we are asked to voice our opinions concerning the advisibility of substituting the voting machine for the ballot sheet.

St. Paul's A. M. E. Church Passes Resolutions.

At the celebration of the 43rd anniversary of the organization of the St. Paul's A. M. E. church, held Sunday, September 22d, the following resolutions upon the death of President McKinley were unanimously adopted :

WHEREAS, In the unsearchable wisdom of God the late President of the United States, William McKinley, has been removed from our midst by the malicious hand of an assassin, who bears the name of Leon Czolgoez and whose only motive for his infamous crime, we believe, was to strike a blow at the peace and prosperity of the nation and the best and grandest government the sun has shown upon ; therefore be it resolved by the African Methodist Episcopal church of Bellefonte, Pa., now in the 43d anniversary of its organization.

1. That we bow in humble submission to an All-wise Providence who by His omnipotent hand has led and guided this nation from its earliest existence to the present and who will continue to lead, guide and bless this nation and our free institutions so long as we hold Him in reverence and strictly obey His mandates.

2. That we lament the loss of our much beloved President, whose heart was full of love and sympathy for his and every nation under the canopy of heaven.

3. That we highly appreciate his private, public and Christian life so nobly exemplified from his early youth until stricken down by the hand of a fiend clothed in human flesh.

4. That we denounce anarchy, or any other organization or sympathizer of such organization whose object is to strike at the vitals of this great republic, and hope for speedy action by the authorities of this nation which will eradicate from our land such evil intentions.

5. That we heartily sympathize with the bereaved widow in the hour of her distress and pray that the God of nations and individuals will sustain her in the trying moments of the balance of her life on earth, then transmit her immortal soul into that blessed habitation where sorrow and pain are felt no more.

REV. C. N. WOODSON, Pastor.
WM. MILLS, Secretary.

Held a Reunion.

Saturday last was a day which will long be remembered by those persons former residents of Centre county who now reside in Blair. It was the day decided on by a committee on which to hold a reunion and there was an attendance of about 500 people. It was a decided success in every particular.

The weather was all that could be desired, attendance was big, addresses were worthy of attention and the music enlivened matters. In addition the outing was of the nature of a basket picnic and this being said it is almost unnecessary to say there was plenty of good things to eat.

The music was furnished by the Bellwood band and in addition to this several solos were rendered by Mr. F. E. Meek, an elderly resident of Altoona.

Addresses were made by Rev. Lewis Robb and Rev. C. M. Piper, of Altoona. Both referred to the county of their birth and the people who left it and went elsewhere. Of the fact that the county had given the State three governors and a tribute was paid to Governor A. G. Curtin. The martial spirit of the county had been shown during the Civil war when one entire regiment—the 158th—was sent to the front.

Dr. D. M. Wolf, who taught school at Spring Mills for fully 50 years, was referred to as a teacher whose pupils were now in every State of the Union.

Half of that distance has already been drilled through solid rock, 500 feet from each end.

PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION

City of Buffalo is Again Pulling Itself Together

AFTER THE TERRIBLE TRAGEDY

Stockholders of the Exposition Have Met With Great Loss as the Exhibition Does Not Receive a Subsidy From State and Nation.

BENDING ALL ENERGIES TO SUCCESS

BUFFALO, September 23.—This city is pulling itself together again after a fortnight of anxiety and sorrow, such as it has never known. What was intended to be the gala period of its history was turned into unspeakable grief, which has gone into every home with a force hard for any one not here to realize. Buffalo was full of personal loyalty and enthusiasm for President McKinley. It has been a centre of McKinley sentiment all through his public career and there was no city in the country where friendship and devotion for him was so marked. Naturally his tragic end while its guest depressed the city beyond expression.

There never was a community more engressed in a great undertaking than Buffalo was with the Pan-American Exposition three weeks ago. Every man, woman and child in the city had a direct interest and pride in the undertaking. It seemed that every one with whom a stranger spoke had in mind the large ideal of the great good which the demonstration of the wonderful resources and abilities of the western hemisphere was to do for the country. Buffalo people seemed rather proud that the whole expense of the demonstration had fallen upon them and their fellow citizens. They would call attention to the fact that all of the funds had been raised in Buffalo, without assistance from the nation, the state, or even the city corporation.

"It is the first exposition which has had no subsidies," so strangers are told. Citizens said:

"The United States has furnished a wonderful exhibit, far more attractive than has ever been seen before; the state of New York has erected a beautiful marble palace; the city of Buffalo has built a bridge and has furnished water, fire and police protection, but the funds to erect the city of light have all come from the private resources of Buffalo people."

When, in his memorable address, the president emphasized the Pan-American idea and made it a part of history, the people of Buffalo realized that their efforts were appreciated. They seemed contented and proud that as individuals of one city they had done the work which might well have been the nation's undertaking. The revulsion was terrible, and now that it is passed the question of what is to come is interesting. The public feeling is strong, and all one way. Every one seems to realize that the stockholders of the exposition have met a great loss, probably of not less than $1,000,000. That practically means the citizens, for about every Buffalonian has stock in the exposition according to his means. The dollars and cents seem pretty thoroughly to be eliminated from the calculation now, but the work to be done, and the end to be achieved, now seem foremost in every man's mind. They feel now that the exposition must be carried to a glorious finish as a labor of patriotism and of love. President Milburn put this thought very strongly. He said: "There must be no faltering in our efforts now, considering how much the success of the Pan-American exposition means in the development of closer political and commercial relations between the peoples's of the western hemisphere. This was a policy earnestly outlined by President McKinley and which interested him so deeply in the exposition from its first inception. It is a strange strike of fate that the success of the exposition should be threatened through this fearful tragedy. We should be lacking in loyalty to his ory if we did not bend all our energies to crowning the work which he had so close to his heart."

Teachers Have a Grievance.

The report from Manila that the American teachers will cable to the President complaining that promised commissary privileges were denied them and that their expenses are double what they were assured they might expect is explained. The privilege of purchasing commissary stores at the government warehouses in the Philippines was taken away from civilian employes by order of the Secretary of War in June and it was presumed that the teachers who sailed subsequently to its issuance were aware of its existence.

Awful Predicament.

The following good story has finally leaked out, but to give names would be courting death :

A young man from Clearfield came to Philipsburg not long since to visit one of the fair maidens of town, and he spent the evening in her society very pleasantly. When it came time for him to leave and go to the hotel he realized that a heavy storm was raging. He had no umbrella or rubber coat, and when the girl's father asked him to remain at the house until morning he readily consented. He is a very bashful young man and the next morning when he was invited to a seat at the table he very reluctantly accepted.

He was nervous and agitated. He sat opposite a mirror and discovered that he had forgotten to comb his hair. Then he dropped his fork on the floor and as he stooped to pick it up he upset his coffee. Matters went from bad to worse and in despair the young man quit eating and put his hands under the table. The loose end of the table cloth was lying on his lap and when he touched it he turned pale. He thought it was his shirt and in his excitement while dressing he had forgotten to put the garment inside his trousers. That accounted for the smiles and stares of the family, and his embarrassment. There was no time to lose. He hurriedly stuffed the supposed shirt inside his trousers.

Two minutes later when the family arose from the table there was a crash. The dishes lay in a broken mass on the floor. The young man pulled three feet of table cloth out of his pants and bolted for the door.

The young lady has a beau nearer home now who is not so nervous.—Philipsburg Record.

"Not Guilty."

If reports are true the Huntingdon fair grounds last week must have been a veritable gambling garden. While the agricultural association, or the owners of the grounds, secured a good round sum for the privilege of running the "sweaters" on the premises, the people of Huntingdon and their guests in the form of visitors, paid the bill a good many times over. The same gang of sharks it is said operated at the Centre county fair at Bellefonte a week earlier.—Tyrone Herald.

In justice to the management of the Centre County Fair Association we desire to inform our esteemed contemporary that there was not a skin game in operation on the fair grounds at the recent Centre county fair. The privilege committee refused license to all such "sharks". The gang that is said to have worked the Huntingdon Fair could not get a toe hold at the Centre County Fair.

When a horse picks up a nail in his foot what does the driver do? Does he whip the limping, lagging animal and force him along? Not unless he wants to ruin the horse. At the first sign of lameness he jumps down, examines the foot and carefully removes the cause of the lameness. What is called "weak stomach" is like the lameness of the horse, only to be cured by removing the cause of the trouble. If you stimulate the stomach with "whisky medicines" you keep it going, but every day the condition is growing worse. A few doses sometimes of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will put the disordered stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition in perfect condition. The opening session was notable in many thing, among which were messages of blessings and congratulations from the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishop of London, the latter expressing the hope that some day the Methodists will be reunited with the Episcopalians. Though the conference does not have legislative and administrative power over the churches represented, their policy will probably be affected both directly and indirectly by the discussions on the religious and social problems that will come before it.

BELLEFONTE'S TRIBUTE TO McKINLEY.

Impressive Memorial Services in the Court House, Public Schools and Academy—Eloquent Eulogies Pronounced by Our Best Orators.

The citizens of Bellefonte, in common with their fellow-countrymen throughout the land, assembled in the Court House on Thursday evening and with sad and sorrowing hearts participated in the memorial services in honor of our late President, William McKinley, held under the auspices of Gregg Post, No. 95, G. A. R.

The meeting was called for 7:30 o'clock and before that hour the commodious court-room was filled to overflowing. James Harris, commander of the post, was chairman of the meeting and when the hour arrived for the services to begin in a few well chosen remarks Commander Harris with deep feeling and perceptible emotion stated the purpose of the gathering.

The services began with a beautiful petition to Our Father in Heaven by the Rev. George Israel Brown, rector of St. John's Episcopal church, and was followed by the rendition of "Lead Kindly Light" by a choir of Bellefonte's sweetest singers. The addresses of the evening were delivered by the following speakers in the order named: Judge John G. Love, ex-Judge A. O. Furst, Rev. P. McArdle, Senator W. C. Heinle, Capt. H. S. Taylor, Clement Dale, Esq., and D. F. Fortney, Esq.

Beautiful, eloquent, inspiring, were the tributes paid to the life and character, works and achievements of him in whose honor and memory our people had assembled. At the conclusion of Judge Furst's splendid eulogy the choir sang "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Jesus Lover of My Soul" followed the address of Senator Heinle. When Mr. Fortney closed what was one of the finest addresses he ever delivered, the choir lead in the singing of "America." Rev. Dr. Shriner, of the Methodist church, in fervent prayer directed the thoughts of the great audience to the throne of God and after the doxology was sung he concluded the service by the benediction.

Dying of Petrification.

Eli Green, a resident of South Mountain, Franklin county, is slowly dying of petrification. A substance resembling stone is slowly forming about his heart. He has been a subject for experiment by physicians, who say he will not live. No explanation is given to this queer case. One year ago Green was hale and hearty. Then he noticed the feeling was leaving his limbs and knives and pins were run into his flesh without causing him any pain.

The Woman's Choice.

Will She Choose Dr. Experiment or Dr. Experience?

Put the question plainly to any woman: Will you choose the experienced or the experimenting doctor? and there's no doubt about the answer. What woman wants to be the subject of experiments, to drag out weary months while the unskilled practitioner vainly tries various medicines, and charges the sick woman liberally for his experimental failures?

Yet willing or unwilling a great many women have to go through just such an ordeal. Their disease baffles the local physician. He tries all he knows to effect a cure and fails. Sometimes this goes on for months, sometimes for years, the woman meantime suffering daily torments.

Perhaps the difference between the "doctoring" of experiment and experience cannot be better shown than in the following statement:

"For seven years I was confined to bed most of the time," writes Mrs. M. P. Davis, of Honaker, Russell Co., Va. "I had four doctors and they said I could not be cured. I had ulceration of uterus and female weakness, so I could not stand on my feet but a short time; had bearing-down sensation, pain in the small of my back. My stomach and bowels, also legs and feet would swell, and everything I ate hurt me. I could not sleep well, was so short of breath I could not lie down at night; had soreness and tenderness over uterus, toubled with palpitation of heart, and suffered with headache all the time. I would get blind and have fainting spells, had dark rings around my eyes and my eyes seemed bloodshot; suffered from painful periods; could not lie on my left side. I would have numb spells, pains around my heart every morning, my lungs hurt me a great deal and my shoulders too. I would spit up blood at times, memory was poor, hearing was bad, hands and feet were cold all the time, and I had chills and night-sweats. After the doctors said I could not be cured I got hold of one of Dr. Pierce's Memorandum Books and read how he had cured so many patients afflicted like I was so I thought his medicine might help me. I wrote to Dr. Pierce for advice and he sent me a very encouraging letter in reply, advising me to take his 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets.' I got two bottles and used these and felt much better. I sent and got six bottles more. I can now work all day and not feel tired at night. I can sleep all night and can eat anything I want at any time. I can walk and go anywhere I please. I feel better than I ever did. Can do all kinds of work in the house and out doors too. I am sorry I did not take Dr. Pierce's medicine when I first began to have poor health. I could have saved what I paid to humbugs. My friends say that I do not look like the same woman. When I commenced your medicine I only weighed one hundred pounds. Now I weigh one hundred and forty. I thank you a thousand times for your good medicine and your kind advice. I used four bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' four of 'Favorite Prescription' and two vials of your 'Pleasant Pellets.'" between experiment and experience in treating womanly diseases? The difference between success and failure. The difference between health and sickness, happiness and misery. The reason that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures so many women is that it is a medicine which is the product of years of experience in the treatment and cure of womanly diseases. It is a medicine made to do certain things and it does what it is made to do. Every woman understands the fine points of this difference between experiment and experience. When the housewife engages a cook she demands experience. She does not want a cook who is experimenting with unfamiliar recipes. The inexperienced man might say—Why, there's the cook book. It tells how to make anything. All you've got to do is to measure and mix as it instructs and you can't come out wrong. Can't you? The wife knows very much better than that. Given the best recipe in the world it takes experience to make a success of it. The difference between the success of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription and the failure of other medicines is the difference of experience. It is no experiment to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of womanly ills. Experience—the experience of hundreds of thousands of women proclaims that it makes weak women strong and sick women well.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE

Thousands of grateful letters have been written to Dr. Pierce. They cover cures of every form of womanly disease which is medically curable. They show that "Favorite Prescription" is a perfect regulator, that it dries enfeebling drains; that it heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. They prove "Favorite Prescription" is the best preparative for maternity; that it keeps the mother strong and healthy and makes the baby's advent practically painless.

Sick and ailing women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is privately read, privately answered and womanly confidences are guarded by the same strict professional privacy which protects the womanly confidences made in a personal consultation with Dr. Pierce. —On Wednesday afternoon as Samuel Weiser and a party of Knights of the Golden Eagle of Millheim were returning from attending the funeral of D. H. Ruhl, at Spring Mills, Charles Houseman of Green Grove, attempted to pass them on his bicycle, along the pike east of Penn Hall, when he was even with them, one of the horses became frightened and jumped on Houseman, knocking him down, and the wagon went over both of his legs. No bones were broken, but the injury was so severe that he had to be hauled home. The bicycle was smashed.

QUEER OPTICAL ILLUSION.

An Interesting Experiment With a Pencil and a Wire Screen.

Professor R. W. Wood recently described a rather startling optical illusion which any one may see with a little practice. A lead pencil is held point up an inch or two in front of a wire screen with a sky background. If the eyes are converged upon the pencil point, the wire gauze becomes somewhat blurred and, of course, doubled.

As the gauze has a regularly recurring pattern, however, the two images can be united and, with a little effort, can be accommodated for distinct vision of the combined images of the mesh. As soon as accommodation is secured the mesh becomes perfectly sharp and appears to be nearly in the plane of the pencil point.

If now the pencil is moved away from the eyes, which are to be kept fixed on the screen, it apparently passes through the mesh and becomes doubled. If now the pencil is removed entirely, it will be found that the sharp images of the combined images of the gauze persist, although the eyes be moved nearer to or farther away from the screen.

Now bring the eyes up to within six or eight inches of the plane in which the mesh appears to be and attempt to touch it with the finger. It is not there. The finger falls upon empty space, the screen being in reality a couple of inches farther off.

"This," says Professor Wood, "is by all means the most startling illusion I have ever seen, for we apparently see something occupying a perfectly definite position in space before our eyes, and yet if we attempt to put our finger on it we find that there is nothing there."—Exchange.

BEE BUZZES.

One-fourth of an acre may contain 150 colonies of bees.

An apiary should not be placed on ground thickly set with trees.

Bees secrete wax only when necessary to furnish storage room for honey or brood.

The secretion of one pound of wax necessitates the consumption of twenty pounds of honey.

When a queen is gone, it will be only a few days until the colony will cease to store much surplus honey.

Sometimes, toward the close of the honey season, the bees will destroy the queen cells or kill all of the queens but one, thus destroying the incentive to swarm.

Care must be taken to see that there is a queen in every colony. If she gets lost or is killed, another must be put in her place, as the colony will run down very fast if left queenless.

Never feed bees during the day, it matters not whether there be one colony or many. It causes confusion, and the bees frequently get cross and go to stinging anything they come near.

In getting bees that have swarmed back into a hive much loss may be prevented by stretching a piece of strong canvas on the ground and setting the hive upon it and then shaking the bees on it.

Never Worry.

PATTISON STEPS DOWN!

Resigns as Chairman of Philadelphia Democratic Committee.

ACTION TAKEN AFTER CONVENTION

The Latter Nominated a Straight-Out Ticket—Ex-Governor Quit After This Had Been Done. Wanted a Fusion Ticket.

COLONEL GUFFEY'S STATEMENT

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21.—A sensation was sprung in local political circles Friday night when ex-Governor Robert E. Pattison announced his resignation as chairman of the Democratic City Committee as a result of the action of the county convention in nominating a straight-out Democratic ticket. Coupled with this announcement was a suggestion from Mr. Pattison that a new democratic organization be formed in the city, which brought out a statement from National Committeeman James A. Guffey heartily endorsing the suggestion.

The party organization of this city is controlled by ex City Chairman Charles P. Donnelly and City Commissioner Thomas J. Ryan, and there has of late been much opposition to their leadership. Efforts have been made by Mr. Pattison and his supporters to have the organization fuse with the Union party in this city which has nominated P. F. Rothermel (the incumbent) for district attorney against the Republican nominee, John Weaver. These efforts failed and last night the Democratic convention placed the following straight ticket in the field:

For district attorney, ex-Postmaster W. Wilkes Carr; controller, Joseph G. Magee; recorder of deeds, Henry Feernberger; clerk of court of quarter sessions, Herman V. Hetzell; member of the board of revision of taxes, Charles Benton.

After the convention had adjourned Mr. Pattison announced his resignation as chairman of the committee, to take effect at once. His letter of resignation is as follows:

"The Members of the Democratic Committee of Philadelphia—Gentlemen:—Some weeks ago I was elected chairman of your committee. This action was without solicitation on my part. I accepted the election with great sacrifice to my business. After assuming the duties of the office with the assurance of your cooperation, I visited all the wards of the city with the exception of three to ascertain the condition of the ward organizations. I found in many of them that there was not even the semblance of an organization in some of the divisions After securing this knowledge I made up my mind to strengthen the weak places and encourage the strong. But after weeks of the most arduous labor the action of the county convention convinces me that I am without voice or influence in the direction of the existing organizations. I believe that the most direct way of reaching the results is the organization of a new Democratic committee which will lead to the nomination of a fusion ticket such as will command the suffrages of the majority of voters of Philadelphia. I therefore tender my resignation to take effect at once.

"Believe me, yours truly,
ROBERT E. PATTISON."

At the same time Colonel Guffey issued the following statement:

"I have spent valuable time at the inconvenience of myself and my business, trying to bring about a state of affairs political in Philadelphia looking to a better government. I had reason to hope that a Democratic county convention would be influenced to this end, but I regret to say my labors have not availed, and believing the only course now left looking to this end is the one suggested by Governor Pattison, chairman of the committee, I most heartily endorse his present position and suggestion, and will aid him to the best of my ability."

The Last Few Years Has Shown a Remarkable Increase of Sleeplessness—How to Overcome It.

Sleeplessness is one of the most prolific sources producing weak, nervous and restless condition. There is no sense in using opiates, they only undermine the constitution. Nothing has ever been known to perfectly control this condition until the advent of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. Their action is so gentle and soothing, sweeet refreshing sleep follows, then nature has a chance to build up.

Mrs. S. H. Sankev, of No. 203 Oak St., Philipsburg, Pa., says: "I can recommend Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. to anyone who from overwork, overstrain or excitement finds themselves in a run down, nervous, sleepless condition. The Nerve Pills were recommended to me and I got some. Their work was of a character that not only permits but makes it a pleasure for me to recommend them to others as a nerve tonic capable of giving strength, nerve steadiness and sleep.

Anecdote of Sims Reeves.

An operatic singer tells the following little known anecdote relating to the late Mr. Sims Reeves: About the middle of the sixties, while the eminent tenor was living in a hotel of a town on the south coast, he made a wager with another guest that he would black his face, proceed to the beach and sing a few of the songs which had made him famous without recognition. Sims Reeves duly disguised himself and rendered to a sparse audience "Tom Bowling," "My Pretty Jane," etc.; but, strange to say, he did not receive much in the way of appreciation or financial tributes from the beach loungers. Hat in hand the tenor approached an elderly gentleman who was standing apart and requested a trifling honorarium, but the stranger had recognized the great vocalist despite his ebon hued skin, and he replied with decision:

"Not this time, Mr. Sims Reeves! My wife is mad about your performances, and you have cost me many a guinea. You have just treated me to the luxury of listening to you without any ruinous expense being attached."

"Confound you," said Reeves, "you have made me lose my bet! Come to my hotel and have a drink."

The stranger accepted the hospitable invitation.

Children's Meals.

Children should be taught to be regular at their meals and to take nothing between meals. This rule applies to infants as well as to older children. The practice of feeding the little one every time it cries is a most serious injury to its weak digestive organs. An infant's stomach, though it needs food at more frequent intervals—two to four hours, according to its age—requires the same regularity which is essential to the maintenance of healthy digestion in older persons. The irregularity usually practiced is undoubtedly one of the greatest causes of the fearful mortality of infants from disorders of the digestive organs, as appears in our mortuary reports.

"Judge Love is the recognized leader of the Quay forces in Centre county."—John Hamilton to the Republican county convention, July 30, 1901.

IT is all very natural for anarchists to oppose law, but none of them has yet explained where he would be now if the American people had not enough respect for law to refrain from hunting him down.

A KANSAS CITY man has discovered that going without food will cure rheumatism. So it will if you go long enough. It may be added that this cure can be applied effectively to about all the ills the human flesh is heir to.

DURING the first half of this year 261 textile mills were built in this country, of which 143 were cotton, 53 knit goods and 25 miscellaneous. Textile manufacturers evidently are not apprehensive of an early collapse of our country's prosperous conditions.

IT is often asserted that the civil war pension roll is still increasing, thirty-six years after the war. This statement, though literally true, is most misleading when made without explaining the case. The increase in the roll is due to the placing thereon of the minor children of deceased soldiers, who, while more numerous than their fathers draw less in the aggregate.

GOVERNOR STANLEY, of Kansas, has withdrawn his offer to give silver cups to all triplets born in his State during his administration. After having purchased twenty sets of cups he decided that he would have to call a halt owing to the expense of the scheme. Kansas is great for its productive capacity and it seems that corn and wheat are not its only long suits.

A UNIVERSAL sentiment is that if by the death of President McKinley anarchy is to be speedily stamped out in our country and anarchists denied an asylum on its shores, he has not died in vain. An incalculable price to pay for the extermination of a class arrayed against government and law but the wisdom of God's will the future will disclose and we shall some day behold the Divine purpose now shrouded in the mystery of an inscrutable Providence.

NO DOUBT President Roosevelt will try, as he says, to follow President McKinley's policy, but it is pretty certain that as emergencies rise, he will solve them in a very different manner from which President McKinley would have adopted. The two men are as far apart as the poles in temperament, and it would be next to impossible for them to act alike. That President Roosevelt will do his best to adhere to the policy of his predecessor no one doubts. He has the confidence of the people and he will not abuse it. We have unbounded faith in Teddy. He will not be found wanting.

JOHN HAMILTON: HIS BOOK.

Part one of last year's report of the State Department of Agriculture, which is just issued, shows in a high degree the diversified uses to which an agricultural department can be put when it is not conducted on the farming basis. This volume—only a forerunner—is embraced within the limited compass of 1010 pages, but it contains as much variety as the joker's column in the newspapers.

Full recognition must be made of the fact that 129 pages are actually devoted to the reports of the department and its various branches. The contractor for the public printing has thrown in an even dozen pages of his own handiwork in the shape of ornamental but highly appropriate illustrations of wriggling snakes. They are poorly executed for snakes, but they cost nothing for typesetting and draw full page pay from the public treasury. They are not out of place in an agricultural report, as they eloquently describe one of the methods by which the contractor gathers in his harvest. These pages will prove instructive alike to printers who understand the metaphysics of fat takes and to farmers who may be in need of future information on so important a branch of the State printing industry.

If Dr. Shaeffer, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, ever sees this report—which, unfortunately, is unlikely, as his tastes do not incline to the Hamiltonian style of agriculture—it will delight him to see how rich and inexhaustible are its pages in the treatment of the subject of education, plowing up all the ground from Vermont to Ohio, with plans for model schools interspersed with essays on the best way to fatten ants. Added to a course of study given in munificent detail through eight grades is a list of pictures which the schools ought to have with the price of each, together with a foot note to advise the reader that these pictures can be purchased of so and so. Two or three dozen pages are in like manner devoted to lists of books with the publishers' names and addresses and the prices, but the rates for advertising all these things in the agricultural report are nowhere stated.

The report gets a paralyzing scoop on the State's official handbook by printing complete returns of the last census by minor civil division, the increasing population being a feature of agricultural enterprise which the department watches with care and gratification. The crop reports for 1900 are also timely, but not any more so than would have been similar reports for the earlier years of the last century, which might easily have been included in this great work by the addition of a few pages. The crops of 1901 being now pretty well gathered in the agricultural mind has time to amuse itself with a study of what it must long ago have dropped out of consideration in the dizzy whirl of years. More ancient crop reports would have been far better than wasting time trying to tell how to grow mint juleps in abandoned postholes.

Having concluded to assume the management of all the several departments of the State Government we cannot doubt the Secretary of Agriculture will in the forthcoming parts of his last year's report supply the rather irritating omissions from the first part. Comprehensive as this initial volume is much is left for the volumes yet to be issued. We get an intimation that some of the subjects to be treated in the second part are already pretty well developed. The wives and daughters of the farmers may confidently look forward to some authentic information about the correct thing in last year's millinery, how much it costs and where it can be bought; how to raise early sunbonnets without the use of a hot house, together with some well considered statistics showing the number of cotton shirts washed in the Commonwealth last year, an agricultural industry somewhat closely related to the census returns.

In the third, fourth or fifth part of this magnificent report on agriculture and things for last year we shall have reason to look for a learned essay on mush and milk as a brain ballast, inexplicably omitted from the first part; some technical treatment from personal observation of the advantages of the judiciary in politics and how to fertilize primaries; the use of the machine to take the place of hand labor in the election of delegates to county conventions as applied by the Pennsylvania State College, and whether vertical or horizontal stripes on stockings are the more suitable to the soil and climate of Pennsylvania. There will certainly be room in some one or more of the volumes yet to come to satisfy the reasonable expectations of the people in these matters.

It would not be fair to base final judgment of the whole work on the single part that has reached the public, but if it holds out as it has begun it will fill the homes of the farmers with joy and many books. They will have public documents enough to build the kitchen fires throughout the whole long Winter. —Philadelphia Press.

McKINLEY'S LAST SPEECH.

Following are some of the notable sentiments in the President's speech at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, September 5th, which were received with great enthusiasm:

"Expositions are the timekeepers of progress.

"The wisdom and energy of all the nations are none too great for the world's work.

"Isolation is no longer possible, or desirable.

"We must not rest in fancy security that we will forever sell everything and buy little or nothing.

"The period of exclusiveness is past. The expansion of our trade and commerce is the pressing problem.

"Reciprocity treaties are in harmony with the spirit of the times; measures of retaliation are not.

"We must encourage our merchant marine. We must have more ships. They must be under the American flag.

"We must build an Isthmian canal.

"The construction of a Pacific cable can be no longer postponed.

"This exposition would have touched the heart of that American statesman whose mind was ever alert and though ever constant for a larger commerce and a truer fraternity of the republics of the new world. He needs no identification to an assemblage of Americans anywhere, for the name of Blaine is inseparably associated with the Pan-American movement.

"Let us ever remember that our interest is in concord, not conflict, and that our real eminence rests in the victories of peace, not those of war. We hope that all who are represented here may be moved to higher and nobler effort for their own and the world's good, and that out of this city may come, not only greater commerce and trade for us all, but, more essential than these, relations of mutual respect, confidence and friendship which will deepen and endure. Our earnest prayer is that God will graciously vouchsafe prosperity, happiness and peace to all our neighbors, and like blessings to all the peoples and Powers of earth."

OUR TOBACCO CROP.

There are in the United States 700,000 acres of land devoted to tobacco, of which 11,000 acres are in New England. The annual yield of all kinds in the country is 500,000,000 pounds, of which New England raises about 19,000,000. The average yield per acre throughout the country is 700 pounds, but in New England it is 1,700 pounds. It is interesting that all the tobacco raised in the country belongs to two or three botanical species, yet there are more than 60 varieties grown commercially, all of them quite distinct in shape, color and quality of leaf.

THE G. A. R. has been reduced from nearly 258,000 in 1895 to less than 260,000 in 1901. Thus the veterans of the war are rapidly passing away.

THE UNION PARTY.

The Union party in State has now formally placed its ticket in the field. The State Convention, composed of representative citizens from all parts of the Commonwealth nominated for Judge of the Supreme Court Hon. Harman Yerkes, of Bucks county, a jurist of distinction and eminence, who is already the Democratic nominee, and for State Treasurer, Hon. E. A. Coray, Jr., of Luzerne county, an Independent Republican, who gave admirable service in the cause of good government at the recent session of the General Assembly. Mr. Coray's Legislative colleague, Mr. Palm, himself a courageous and trustworthy official, who is the Democratic nominee for State Treasurer, will, it is understood, decline the nomination in order that Mr. Coray may be substituted and fusion on the State ticket perfected. The platform adopted by the State Convention is a strong and unanswerable presentation of the intolerable conditions existing in Pennsylvania's government, and a convincing justification of the necessity for the popular and non-partisan movement of which the Union party is the exponent.

The platform arraigns the Quay-Ashbridge machine for its autocratic insolence, its defiant violation of voluntary pledges of reform, its reckless disregard of the rights of the people, its shameless prostitution of public power to private greed, its disgraceful combination with recreant Democrats to make bad laws and prevent salutary legislation, its "ripper" bills to overthrow home rule and narrow the jurisdiction of the courts, its gift of valuable franchises to political favorites and its opposition to an honest ballot and a fair election. The resolutions commend the emphatic expressions of the Democratic State Convention in favor of a closer union of the reform forces, and announce that the Union party has been called into being

"for the single purpose of overthrowing evil combinations now in the State, and electing men without regard to party affiliations who will administer with simple honesty and ability the offices to which they are elected. It does not aim to sever citizens from their affiliation with the great parties that are divided upon questions of national politics. Its struggle is for an honest ballot, and for the restoration of integrity and capacity in State and municipal affairs."

The fundamental principles of the Union party are declared to be selection of fit men for office, a free ballot and a fair count, punishment of election frauds, restriction of crime by fearless administration, a pure and non-partisan judiciary, equitable tax assessments, no free gifts of public franchises to private ownership, wise and economical expenditure of public funds, impartiality in the award of public contracts and self-government for municipalities. With such candidates and upon such a platform the Union party deserves and should receive the vote of every intelligent, self-respecting and patriotic citizen of Pennsylvania.—Public Ledger.

Now is the Time to Strike for Political Reform and Good Government.

From the Phila. Times.

There could be no more favorable time than now for the union of all the patriotic citizens of Pennsylvania, irrespective of party name, for the defense of the Commonwealth against the corrupt organization that has used the machinery of both political parties to promote its schemes of public robbery and brigandage. The necessity never was so urgent, and at a period when party passions have been allayed and there are no defined national issues to distract public opinion, the opportunity for united action is as clear as the duty.

WHEN enumerating the several Quay machine newspapers of the county some weeks ago we inadvertently omitted to mention the "Centre Reporter." We tender our apology for the oversight and hasten to express the hope that our esteemed contemporary from over the mountain may receive a substantial recognition of its service (?) to the cause of Quayism and kindred political evils.

A PLAUSIBLE INFERENCE.

The gangrene that developed in President McKinley's case has had the effect of calling the attention to certain little known advantages in the way of recovery from wounds made by modern high velocity rifle balls and those from low velocity rifles, pistols, and the like. It is well known that a pistol ball fired at a pane of glass, will shatter it to fragments while a rifle ball will merely make a small hole through it, without even cracking it, the difference being due to the greater speed of the rifle ball. So with gangrene, which is due to infection carried by the bullet. It has been proved by actual experiment that a slow moving bullet, passing through any substance infected by bacteria will pick some of them on its way and carry them into any wound it may make; swift bullets, on the other hand, either go so fast that they do not pick up the microbes, or what is more probable, develop such heat by friction with the air, that they burn whatever they do pick up. In any event the danger of infection is far less from a swift bullet than from a slow one, thus accounting for the small mortality to our troops from wounds from Mauser bullets received during the Spanish war. It is entirely possible that microbes either from waterproof grease of the pistol ball with which the President was shot or from the clothing of the President itself, was thus carried into the wound, resulting in the gangrene.

SECRETARY OF THE BUREAU OF GENERAL INFORMATION.

It is a question now whether John Oleo Hamilton was selected as the head of the State Department of Agriculture because of his superior qualification as an exponent of agricultural science or because of his genius as a litterateur, the doubt having been thrust upon the public mind by a remarkable publication of which he is the author, designed to be a report of the work of the Department of Agriculture for the year 1900. It is, we understand, volume 1 of a series to be published covering the achievements of the bureau for the past year. A writer on the Philadelphia Press gives an interesting review of Hamilton's literary effort and in order that the citizens of Centre county may acquire some idea of Hamilton's importance in the State Administration and know how varied and diversified are the questions with which, as Secretary of Agriculture, he is compelled to deal with. We print in another column the review referred to under the caption, "John Hamilton: His Book." Perhaps this book, volume 1 of the Hamilton Encyclopedia of Universal knowledge, can be had as a premium with a subscription to the State College Times.

PROSPERITY'S PROGRESS.

The enormous progress that the industries of the United States have made during President McKinley's administration is shown with striking emphasis in the fact that our imports to Canada continues to increase while those of great Britain have as consistently declined, and that, too, despite the fact that the Dominion tariff discriminates in favor of the mother country to the extent of 33 1-3 per cent., having been raised to this about a year ago from 25 per cent. with the avowed intention of shutting out United States trade in favor of Great Britain. Nevertheless, in the past year Canada's imports from Great Britain decreased $1,625,350, and her imports from the United States increased nearly $8,000,000. The total trade of Canada was $386,903,157, of which $304,490,503 was with the United States and Great Britain, our share being $168,468,681, and that of Great Britain $136,021,822. These significant facts show the remarkable ability of the United States to compete with the British manufacturer on his own ground, even in the face of a 33 1-3 per cent. protective tariff. To this result the splendid protective policy of the Republican party has brought us.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25, 1901.

President Roosevelt has announced his desire that all the members of the present Cabinet retain their places. Like most of the news authorized by him, this information is decisive and unqualified. He has a way of telling the newspaper men just as much of his business as he thinks fit, and then, with a pleasant smile, shutting his mouth and the door on them simultaneously. This is all right for the press representatives who are really after the news, but it is hard on the sensation mongers. They have no hints or rumors, or half-truths on which to build headlines.

There is a considerable sensation, however, in this simple announcement, for very few people thought that Roosevelt would do just what he has done. All sorts of surmises were flying about concerning the changes in the Cabinet, which were immediately to take place, and some audacious Washington Correspondents had the temerity to state positively that nearly the whole Cabinet would "suffer a sea-change into something rich and strange." They even went so far as to give the names of the resigning officers and of those who would fill their places. They must be disappointed to find that after all this cackling they have really nothing of importance to tell. It is hard when the advertisement is more exciting than the show. There is only one sensation in it instead of half a dozen, and that one is that a man who was thought by many people to be radical, almost revolutionary, turns out to be wisely conservative.

Those who know Roosevelt well, however, are not so much surprised as others. His action in this matter has steadied public sentiment, established confidence in him and in the administration, and had a good effect in every way. Nothing could have been gained by a change which has not been won twice over by this conservatism, and it has had all the stronger effect because unexpected. If Roosevelt had been a weak or commonplace man, one who followed the beaten path because it is easiest, his decision might have been considered merely the resultant of several co-existing party forces, and his stability would have only been a matter of the continued union of these forces. But he is not that kind of a man; his worst enemies never accused him of being easily influenced. He chose this course because his judgment and his instincts told him that it was best; and if the whole party had been against it he would have done the same thing. This being so, his steadiness and conservatism can be depended upon until circumstances plainly indicate that it is best to move, and then he will do so, just as he retained the Cabinet, on his own responsibility.

Some of the Senators of Roosevelt's party, and other prominent public men, who have been interviewed, plainly show by their comments their thorough approval of the new Executive. Senator Frye of Maine said "The business men of New England seem to be impressed with the fact that there will be no change of policy, in spite of the fact that a new man is at the helm of state. Under such conditions there need be no halt in business enterprises."

Speaker Henderson said, "My observation is that the business men of the country have confidence in President Roosevelt, and are going on just the same as if President McKinley were alive."

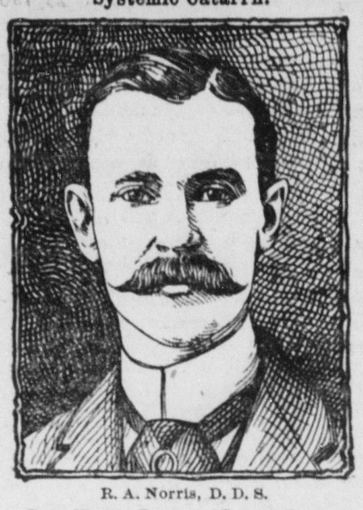
Ex-Senator Washburn said: "I have taken pains to sound business men toward the new administration, and on every hand I found them, great and small, confident that President Roosevelt fully understood the interests of the country and would deal with them safely and wisely."

Senator Depew says. "In forty-eight hours President Roosevelt has placed us upon solid ground."

Senator Spooner said: "No one could be more anxious to give to the country an administration which

A CHICAGO DENTIST

Relates How He Found a Cure for Systemic Catarrh.



R. A. Norris, D. D. S.

R. A. Norris, Doctor of Dental Surgery, 126 State street, Chicago, Ill., writes to The Peruna Medicine Company as follows:

"I desire to express for the benefit of the public my experience with the famous catarrh remedy, Peruna I was afflicted with catarrh of the head and throat for twelve years. I had tried many remedies without avail. I applied to several doctors, but they were not able to cure me. I learned of the remedy, Peruna, through your pamphlets and took it for four months. It entirely cured me, and as I took the remedy three years ago, I consider the cure permanent."

Hon. Clement M. Hammond is one of the best known newspaper men in New York City. Writing to The Peruna Medicine Co., he says:

"For about six years I have had trouble every fall and winter with my voice. At times it has extended to my bronchial tubes and lungs. I think all this trouble came from whooping cough, which I had when I was about twelve years old, and which left me with catarrh. Since I have taken Peruna, my voice has been clearer than in over two years, all of which I am willing to testify to." Mr. Hammond's address is "The Arlington," 64 Montague street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O., for a free catarrh book.

will promote rather than retard its progress than President Roosevelt."

As for Hanna, Platt, and the other prominent Republican leaders, they do not disguise their satisfaction at this turn of affairs; and some of the Democratic leaders have also expressed unqualified approval, though they have not sowed it abroad to quite such an extent as those of the other party.

WITH former Lieutenant Governor Watres, of Lackawanna county, as an avowed candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, and with Congressman Connell, of the same county, as a possibility, not to mention others under whose bonnets the gubernatorial fly is buzzing, Attorney General Elkin is likely to find his road to that high place on the Republican ticket beset with divers complications and barriers.

THE State Democratic organization is now about to purge itself of the Ryans and Donnelleys who have for years used it for their personal profit in the service of the Quay cause. The house-cleaning should have begun at the recent Democratic State convention. Though a few weeks late the work of extermination will be none the less thorough and complete.

A GOOD Republican can vote for Yerkes and Coray and still be loyal to the principles of Republicanism, assuming as we do that true Republicanism, as exemplified by Lincoln, Grant, Blaine and McKinley, stands for honest government and honest public service, with only the best interest of the people, the State and and Nation at heart.

THREE of the seven Presidents of the United States elected since 1861 have been assassinated. What country in the civilized world presents a worse record.

Mr. William Valence East Lamb street, Night watchman, says: "For 2 years or more off and on, I had trouble with my back and pains in the upper part of my spine accompanied by a disagreeable feeling in my head and acute lameness right over my kidneys. At first I thought it was my liver but later found it arose from the kidneys not acting properly. I read of the many cures that had been made in Bellefonte by Doan's Kidney Pills and I got them at F. Potts Green's drug store. They stopped the annoyance from the kidneys and removed the lameness and aching in my back. They did me any amount of good and I do not hesitate to recommend them."

A SENSIBLE SUNDAY NEWSPAPER.

So Promises The Sunday North American, the First Number of Which Will be Out September 29.

The North American announces that on September 29th it will begin the publication of a Sunday edition. Prevailing conditions demand of each metropolitan paper an issue every day in the year, and the North American is sensibly obeying that demand. Rumors of this innovation have already been heard and interest and speculation as to what it will be like is keen. The North American, when it does anything, does it better than any one else, and in the matter of a Sunday paper the same rule is expected to apply.

For one thing. The North American promises that its Sunday Edition will be "different." The standard of text and illustration will be as high as that of any monthly magazine. It will not be "cheap" in any sense. It will not magnify the trivial, neither will it make heroics out of the silly and the commonplace. The North American's motto is, "A sensible Sunday newspaper," and if it is such it certainly will be different and welcome.

It will strive, of course, to be interesting and entertaining. That goes without saying. The special writers and artists are of the first rank and the magnificent mechanical equipment of The North American insures perfect printing.

As to the details of the paper itself this much is known, There will be four colored supplements in addition to the news sections and sheet music. There will be a supplement of eight pages in colors, devoted exclusively to women's interests, a comic section of four pages in colors, and a sixteen-page supplement in colors explaining the involved and varied processes of making a newspaper. The sheet music will be like that on sale in music stores in every particular. The first Sunday North American will probably consist of seventy-six pages, of which thirty-two will be used for news.

Missionary Society Meeting.

The eighteenth annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the M. E. church was held in the M. E. church at Jersey Shore this week. Each auxiliary in the conference is entitled to two delegates. An interesting program has been arranged for the meeting. The officers of the society are:

Mrs. A. W. Black, Harrisburg, president; Mrs. George Edward Reed, Carlisle, first vice president; Mrs. M. E. Denehey, Harrisburg, recording secretary, Miss Sarah J. Richardson, treasurer; Mrs. T. L. Tomkinson, Philipsburg, corresponding secretary; Mrs. George Leidy, Altoona, secretary supplies.

A Prosperous Order.

The Royal Arcanum has prospered in a high degree for the past few years. The state of Pennsylvania now has 139 councils and about 26,500 members. Subordinate councils have a membership of 225,000. At the close of last month the order had cash on hand after passing all its liabilities, as follows: W. & O. B. fund, $465,000, emergency fund, $1 400,000; general fund, $150,000; a total of about $2,000,000. In August $50,000 additional was transferred to the emergency fund. This fact indicates the healthy financial condition of the order.

New Counterfeit Discovered.

A new counterfeit $10 treasury note has reached the secret service bureau at Washington. It is a photo lithographic production on two pieces of Japan tissue between which red and blue silk fiber has been distributed. The work is poorly done, and the seal is brick red. The lathe work is lost, and the back of the note is a muddy green, The note in hand has the check letter B, series 1880, portrait of Webster, Lyons register Ellis A, Roberts treasurer.

—The A. M. E. Church of this place has been particularly fortunate in being able to secure Miss Hallie Quin Brown, of Wilberforce, Ohio, who will give a reading in the Court House Wednesday evening October 2, 1901. Miss Brown comes with the recommendation of the Press of both east and west. We feel satisfied you will be well repaid if you go to hear her.

SMALL CALIBER RIFLES.

How They May Be Kept Clean With a Squirt of Water.

"Now, I'll tell you something that will save you the trouble and expense of bringing this gun to me again," said the expert gunsmith to the owner of a .22 caliber magazine rifle, the barrel of which had become so foul that it would not shoot true.

"The rifles of this gun are not leaded. They are simply caked up with powder. All small caliber rifles get that way when ordinary, soft bullets are shot out of them. This caked powder is as hard as steel, and if I were to try to get it out with instruments I would ruin several dollars' worth of tools. Water is the thing to use. Water is the greatest solvent known, but very few people, particularly people who handle guns, seem to appreciate it. They nearly always try to clean their gun barrels with oil when water will do the work twice as well.

"You use this rifle mostly for shooting frogs, don't you? I thought so. That is what most men use a .22 caliber for. And you sometimes shoot it several hundred times a day, and you find it too much trouble to wipe it out every few shots. Ain't I right? I knew it. Now, let me tell you what to do. Get a small syringe that you can carry in your vest pocket, and after every ten or twelve shots squirt a syringeful of water into the barrel of your gun from the breech, then shoot a cartridge out of it while it is wet. If you will follow this plan, you can shoot your gun 10,000 times and never need to clean it. The water softens the powder that has accumulated in the rifles and the bullet forces it out.

"Use plenty of water in the barrel of your rifle, very little oil in the lock, and never under any circumstances put coal oil in the works, and you will save yourself much vexation and always have a smooth working gun."—St. Louis Republic.

Are Willow Trees Lightning Proof?

"In all my forty years' experience with trees and plants," said a well known gardener, "I have yet to hear of a willow tree being struck by lightning. Spruce trees, whitewood and pine trees sometimes almost seem to attract the electricity, and oak and other large trees and even many small trees are often maimed and killed. But willow trees seem for some reason to be immune to death or injury in this shape, and I have never seen or even heard of a tree of this family which lightning has ever struck."—Cleveland Leader.

Cornmeal.

Before using cornmeal in a bread always scald it to soften its starch. There is not time enough during the baking for this to be done properly. Do this by scalding half of the milk or water you use, then pour it hot over the cornmeal. Next add the eggs, the rest of the cold liquid, then the flour and baking powder sifted together.—Good Housekeeping.

Pepper.

The value of pepper was known of old. We read that when Rome had to be ransomed from the barbarian conqueror in the year 400 Alaric demanded 3,000 pounds of pepper among the payments and that Hippocrates used it in medicine, applying it to the skin.

Jezebel, the queen of Ahab, according to one of the rabbis, had "black eyes that were set on fire of hell."

THE INNS OF NORWAY

PLAIN AND WHOLESOME AND WITHOUT ANY FRILLS.

The Meals Are Formidable Affairs, and Salmon Is Always Served. Guests Are Expected to Eat Heartily and to Wait on Themselves.

At intervals of eight or ten miles along the public highway, usually in connection with the skyds stations, are inns where the traveler will invariably find the comforts if not the luxuries of life—plenty of food and shelter, bed and board. There is no upholstered furniture or velvet carpets or eggshell china, but always neat lace curtains at every window, sometimes in the windows of the stables.

A luxurious American will have to deny himself much that he is accustomed to at home and will encounter experiences and customs that are new and novel to him. But if he is reasonable in his requirements and behaves himself like a gentleman he will always meet with a hospitable although a homely welcome. The Norwegian hotel keepers measure our appetites by their own and give you so much to eat, particularly at the noon dinner, that you are stupid and sleepy all the rest of the day and snooze in your carriage when you ought to be admiring the scenery.

There is no style about the hotels, and the service is poor. The household work is all done by the landlord and his wife and daughters. There are no electric bells, and if you want anything you usually have to hunt for it and help yourself. It is the custom of the country for the travelers to make themselves at home, and you are sometimes compelled to look after your own luggage or it is liable to be left. But you will recover it again after a time. The people are honest, considerate and unselfish, but unpretentious in their hospitality. There are no locks on their doors, for none is needed. Burglars and thieves are absolutely unknown.

The bedrooms are barren of ornaments and easy chairs that we are accustomed to at home. There are no carpets and no rugs on the floor. All the appurtenances are plain and substantial, without any effort at show and very little idea of convenience. The beds are good, but usually the only cover is a comfortable seven or eight inches thick and as heavy and unwieldy as a feather bed. You can't tuck it in at the bottom or at the sides, and it is always sliding off to the floor. It is too much covering for an ordinary sleeper, and when the nights are warm, as they often are, you are compelled to choose between a chill and suffocation.

The pillows are another nuisance. There are usually a bolster of feathers about the size of a barrel and a little bit of a 4 by 9 pillow an inch or two thick, with pretty trimmings upon it. The big pillow is too big, and the little one is two small, and you solve the dilemma by rolling up your overcoat into a ball and using that instead. There is plenty of fresh, heavy, homemade linen—large, square towels that have been woven under the same roof during the long winter days.

The breakfast is abundant and often terrifying. You are at first confronted with five or six different kinds of cheese, an equal variety of cold meats, tinned fish, smoked herring and salmon, cold boiled ham, three or four kinds of cold sausage, strips of dried reindeer meat and half a dozen different jams and preserved fruits. You are expected to partake freely of that sort of provender and usually do so until you learn by experience that dried fish, boiled eggs, veal cutlets and other hot food will soon follow if you are patient. The coffee is usually good, and there is always an abundance of rich, thick cream. There is no warm bread, but five or six kinds of cold bread baked from wheat, rye and oat flour, besides the national "flatbrod," which no Norwegian table is ever without.

The dinner is a formidable affair after the fashion of the ordinary European table d'hote, with soup, fish, roast, salad, preserves and pudding, while for supper you get the same assortment of cheese, cold meats, fish, sausage and preserves that you have had for breakfast and two or three hot dishes. Fish is the staff of life and salmon the mainstay. It is served in some form at every meal, fried at breakfast and supper and boiled for dinner, with strips of cold smoked salmon of a deep rich color on the side at all meals.

The lakes and rivers are well stocked with salmon trout, which are caught in nets and kept alive in tanks until they are needed. You enjoy them the first five or six meals, but after you have had them seventeen or eighteen times in succession they begin to lose their relish. Beer is the ordinary beverage. Everybody drinks it. Claret and Rhine wine can be had at the larger hotels, but never any whisky, brandy or other strong liquors. Local option prevails throughout Norway, and in the country districts the sale of spirituous liquors is forbidden.—W. E. Curtis in Chicago Record-Herald.

Half and Half.

"Have you suffered much from toothache?" asked the dentist.

"A little," answered the young woman in the chair, "but not much. My teeth, I suspect, are like mamma's. She has never had anything done to hers, and she hasn't an unsound tooth in her head."

"How are your father's teeth?"

"Poor papa! His are all gone. They never were anything but mere shells."

"Well," said the dentist, breaking it to her as gently as he could, "it's very evident that you inherit your upper jaw from your mother and your lower jaw from your father."—Chicago Tribune.

THE HANDY FOLDING RULE.

An Old Standby of the Mechanic In Greater Demand Than Ever.

"There are about a million different kinds of rules," said a dealer in hardware and tools, "the rules being something of well nigh universal use in one form or another in pretty much all trades, but here's one old standby that we sell more of now than ever, this being the folding rule.

"There are plenty of rules that fold, the commonly known two foot rule being a familiar example, but this particular old rule that I speak of is known by name as the folding rule.

"It is made in foot long sections, in various lengths, ranging from two to ten feet and over ten, if required, but three feet, five feet, any number of feet, the rule, whatever its total length, folds up completely into a bundle a foot long. The slats are thin and folded up, and even a ten foot rule takes up little room. It can be quite conveniently carried in the pocket.

"Lots of people use folding rules—plumbers, for instance, in measuring pipes and in measuring places for pipes. In measuring a distance greater than the spread of the arms with a tape two men are required, but one man can measure with a folding rule as far as the rule can reach, and with such a rule he can, single handed, measure around corners or in the angles of wall and ceiling or in any other bend or crevice. We sell lots of them nowadays to electricians, who use them in measuring for wiring houses, and we sell them to various other users, the six foot rule being the one most commonly sold.

"Such rules, of whatever length, are sold by the foot, at 8 cents a foot."—New York Sun.

FLOWER AND TREE.

Pruning to excess or too frequent or too long is weakening to the tree.

When a branch is removed, the cutting should be close, leaving no stub.

The apple, pear, quince and thorn can be grafted one on another, with varying success.

Wormy fruit in the orchard is best disposed of by the sheep. They eat all without making any choice, as pigs do.

Planting a few trees every fall or spring, as may be convenient, helps materially to keep up a supply of good fruit.

The cherry, peach, apricot, nectarine and almond require a light, dry and warm soil, but may be grown on loose, sandy soils.

Saltpeter is recommended as a quick acting fertilizer for flower beds that seem to be languishing, especially those that show small and pale leafage.

Peach and plum trees are both less liable to diseases when grown in the poultry yard. The trees will make a better growth and at the same time afford shade for the fowls.

Geraniums that have been used for summer bloomers will not flower again until the late spring months. Geraniums for winter blooming should be grown especially for that purpose by keeping the flower buds nipped off until August.

Love at First Sight.

We talk of love at first sight, but what shall we say of people who have never seen each other marrying and being not unhappy? "Courting," said an Irishman, "is like dying—sure a man must do it for himself."

In some countries—as, for instance, Sweden—this is not the case. There the marriages of young people are made for them by their parents, and they only begin to court when they are wedded. This sounds wrong and absurd in theory, but it often works well in practice. Indeed young people ask the advice of their parents much too little about that which is perhaps the most serious and important undertaking in life—marriage. Too many of them are like the young lady who said she hoped she might be cut into ten thousand triangles if she did not know more of everything than did her mother. So they consult no one and insist on gaining experience at a great cost to themselves.—Philadelphia Ledger.

An Alphabetical Ad.

The Schoolmaster has discovered this alphabetical advertisement in an issue of the London Times in 1842: "To widowers and single gentlemen—Wanted by a lady a situation to superintend the household and preside at table. She is Agreeable, Becoming, Careful, Desirable, English, Facetious, Generous, Honest, Industrious, Judicious, Keen, Lively, Merry, Natty, Obedient, Philosophic, Quiet, Regular, Sociable, Tasteful, Useful, Vivacious, Womanish, Xantippish, Youthful, Zealous, etc. Address X Y Z, Simmons' Library, Edgeware Road."

Paper Quilts.

In some parts of England there is quite a trade carried on by poor people in making paper quilts for their poorer neighbors. They are simply composed of sheets of brown paper sewed together and perforated all over at distances of an inch or two apart, covered with chintz or cretonne on one side and lined with patchwork or old sheets—anything available, in fact. They make surprisingly warm covers and are much appreciated.—London Tit-Bits.

Hands Off.

"What have you got that sign 'Hands Off' posted outside your works for?" asked the curious individual.

"Because," returned the jocular mill owner, "my men are on strike."—Philadelphia Record.

To discover whether or not there is arsenic in your wall paper take a fragment of it and put it in a solution of ammonia. If arsenic is present, the liquid will assume a bluish tint.

LIGHTNING FLASHES.

HOW THEY ARE EVOLVED AND THE ENERGY THEY POSSESS.

Inhabitants of Compactly Built Cities Have Little Cause to Fear These Mysterious and Destructive Balls From the Clouds.

Without doubt lightning was the first electrical phenomenon that was observed by human beings. To this day it remains the least known and least understood of natural electrical manifestations except, perhaps, the aurora.

There is a vast deal of popular misconception concerning the danger of lightning and the nature of it. The lightning flash is a discharge from a cloud at a high potential with reference to the earth. When the atmosphere is charged with water vapor and some eddy or current in its colder upper strata is deflected downward, causing condensation, exceedingly minute drops of water are formed, each bearing an electrical charge. The consolidation of these into larger drops results in a very great increment of the potential of the charge since the capacity of the drop varies with its diameter and the volume of the drop with the cube of the diameter.

The consequence of this is that it takes, for example, eight drops consolidated to make one of twice the diameter of the constituent drops, and the charge on the surface of the consolidated drop will be four times as great as that upon the surfaces of its elements. In this way, as the small water particles unite to form drops which fall as rain, the potential of the charge they carry increases until it attains enormous values, and the lightning flash leaps to the earth, which may be regarded simply as a body of very great electrostatic capacity. The discharge, which is called lightning, is apt to be more or less destructive, although the energy of an individual flash is perhaps not very great. Often the conditions are such that the discharge takes on an oscillating character, producing violent surgings of current. No very accurate measurements have been made upon the current involved, but it is taken to be of the order of 1,000 to 5,000 amperes. The electro motive force necessary to cause a flash a mile long is probably several million volts, and of course the power of the flash measured in watts is very great, but its duration is correspondingly short.

Protection of property and life from lightning flashes has been a subject that has entrained the attention of natural philosophers since Franklin sent up his historic kite. The net result of more than a century of attempt to secure protection has been the lightning rod in its more or less inefficient forms and the discovery that buildings of modern construction, having metallic roofs and often metallic frames as well, are practically immune from attack by lightning.

The total number of deaths due to lightning in any given summer is comparatively very small—in the ratio of about one to each 200,000 population in the United States. In cities the destructive influence of lightning is exceedingly small, although occasional fires are caused by it, especially where gas pipes abound.

Protection of electric circuits from lightning has been an interesting subject for research for a number of years, and several highly efficient devices have been constructed for this purpose. Today lightning is little feared by the station superintendent and should be very little feared by any one. The time honored rule that it is wisest to keep in the open and not seek the shelter of trees is one which common prudence dictates. Recourse to the feather bed of our ancestors, however, is no longer necessary except to quiet the nerves of timorous persons, while the ancient superstitions regarding handling steel instruments and sitting in drafts may be utterly disregarded. A modern building in a city is as nearly absolutely lightning proof and those in it are as nearly absolutely protected from lightning as is possible.—Electrical Review.

America's Superior Schools.

In spite of excessive decentralization and the lack of a regulative central authority America has, by making education a local concern, by confiding to each district the organization and control of its schools, by insisting on free public schools in the true sense of these much abused words, created a system which, in spite of its crudeness and obvious imperfections, may yet excite our envy, both as it brings education, secondary as well as primary, within the reach of all and as it is capable of infinite self development and progress, unshackled by the dead hand of ecclesiasticism and departmental routine. —London Chronicle.

QUEER OLD FLASKS.

New York Wine Merchant Has an Interesting Collection.

There is an old wine merchant in New York who has a curious collection of old bottles.

One, which he believes to be the oldest bottle used for holding liquor in this country, came from Nassau, in the Bahamas, originally filled with snuff. It is made of a coarse, seaweed colored glass and is shaped somewhat like a chestnut standing upright upon its broad end. There is a broad bottomed bottle which held madeira in Charleston in 1810 and a Viennese bottle 125 years old, whose slender, graceful curves have been supplanted today by a more commercial shape. The first American gin bottle, from the Schuchnelt estate, has a pouter pigeon shape, which is delightful to the eye.

Among the later bottles are some which constitute the product of the bottle maker's art when impressed glass came into use. On each side figures are molded into the glass. There are a number of "railroad bottles." On one a wagon running on rails and drawn by a horse is depicted on both sides, with the motto, "Success to the Railroad." On another the same primitive arrangements are shown, commemorating the railroad at Lowell, and on the reverse of the bottle a spread eagle imbedded in thirteen stars.

George Washington figures on one bottle, upon the reverse of which was Zachary Taylor, who, so says the glass, "never surrenders." A spread eagle and what appears to be a Masonic shrine, a fruit basket and horn of plenty and two trees, one in leaf, the other bare, representing "summer" and "winter," are both two faced designs. A large, round bottle, which in these days would contain Holland gin, is impressed with a series of monks at their prayers. It was called the "apostles' bottle," but it drew fire from the pope, who had it put, by edict, out of general use.—American Wine Press.

ENGLAND'S SEA GYPSIES.

A Strange Little Tribe That Lives Always on Boats.

A strange and almost unknown part of the population (if it can be called that) of the British isles is the queer semiwild folk known as sea gypsies. Real gypsies they are, differing from their fellow gypsies in the fact that they always live on the sea and that, never having mingled with landsmen, their type is much purer and more nearly resembles the original.

There are about 500 sea gypsies in Britain. They cruise along the coast, seldom touching the land, but always close to it, in old and weatherbeaten craft that may have carried their grandfathers.

When the tide is out, the old craft will often drop anchor by a sand bank inland far out at sea, and her crew will grub for cockles with their hands, filling a score of baskets, but saying nothing to each other, for they are almost out of the habit of speech. They find fifty shellfish where the ordinary fisherman finds one, but they rarely do the same thing two days running, and in the next hour they may be snaring rabbits on a headland miles away.

The sea gypsies are wild eyed and thickset. Their hair is always either jet black or golden. They are still of almost pure Norse or Danish descent, never having used the land and mixed with the shore folk to any extent. Their hands seem to be all thumbs instead of fingers, so powerful and stubby are the digits, because they have done nothing but haul ropes and dig in the wet sand.—New York Press.

Tried and Convicted Too.

Politics in the west, even more than in the east, says the author of "Life and Sport In California," is a profession. I remember two men who were candidates for the office of district attorney. One had served before; the other was a young man conducting his first campaign.

The veteran was speaking in a small town, and after setting forth his own claims he spoke as follows of his opponent:

"I understand that Mr. X. is in every sense a worthy and honorable man, but I ask you to remember that he has never been tried—he has never been tried."

"That's so!" exclaimed a voice. "You've been tried, old man, haven't you—and convicted, too, you know?"

After due inquiry it appeared that the veteran had been, indeed, indicted for horse stealing and convicted. He was not elected.

Norway Fairies.

"Like the Japanese," writes William E. Curtis in the Chicago Herald, "the Norwegians are very superstitious, and as in Japan the forests, the mountains and the gorges are peopled with fairies. Nissen is the good fairy of the farmers. He looks after the cattle particularly, and if he is well treated they are healthy and the cows give lots of milk. To propitiate him it is necessary to put a dish of porridge on the threshold of the cow stable on Christmas morning. Whenever the family moves this invisible being goes along with them and sits on the top of the loads."

Reason For Dislike.

Wife—Mr. Black has no more taste in the matter of dress than a giraffe.

Husband—Why do you say that?

Wife—Because his wife had on the most beautiful gown last night, and when I admired it he said he thought it was dreadful.

Husband—But, my dear, he had to pay $500 for it.—Detroit Free Press.

Of a Large Class.

Simkins—Bilkins junior strikes me as being a very promising young man.

Timkins—Yes; more promising than paying.—Chicago News.

One of Florence's Jokes.

That genial comedian W. J. Florence had a habit of promising a man a fish or some game when he was about starting on a hunting or fishing trip. Day after day would pass, and the game would not be forthcoming. But almost every day a letter or telegram would come saying that Florence had not forgotten; that Florence was just about sending the game; that there was no cause for worry, as a fine fish or deer was on its way to the express office. At first this solicitousness would cause courteous letters and telegrams in return. As the delay got longer the victim would get impatient and would finally be literally haunted by huge fishes or deer, "with the compliments of W. J. Florence." Then some fine day, when it was least expected, the fish or deer would come.

Beef Tea.

It is the suggestion of a trained nurse, whose beef tea was most acceptable to a patient to whom in any previous illness it had been repellent, that the beef should be broiled before the juice is extracted. A thick, lean, juicy steak from the round is broiled over a clear fire perhaps two minutes on each side, after which it is cut up into small squares, put into a saucepan, covered with cold water and set on the back of the stove, where it should steep, not boil, for fully two hours. Remember not to add the salt until the dish is taken from the fire and serve it hot unless, of course, it is to be offered as cold or iced beef tea.

DUST TO DUST!

The Mortal Remains of President McKinley at Rest.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES AT CANTON

An Immense Concourse of People Military and Civilian, Followed the Hearse to the Grave in West Lawn Cemetery.

MRS. MCKINLEY WAS NOT PRESENT

CANTON, O., September 19.—The sight was profoundly impressive as the funeral train drew into the little station at Canton at exactly noon yesterday. All about the station and banked deep in the surrounding streets were the friends and neighbors of the martyred president, while drawn up back of the station were long lines of militiamen at present arms. Immediately in the rear of the station at the mouth of Tenth street was Troop "A" of Cleveland, mounted on their black chargers, keeping the entrance of the line of march clear.

Up this street, soldiers at intervals of ten feet with difficulty restrained the solid wall of people. Canton had suddenly became a city of 100,000 and the entire population was in the streets. The station itself was cleared, a company of soldiers of the Eighth Ohio, from Worcester, keeping the platform clear. Over the heads of acres of people on the wall of a big establishment was an enormous shield thirty feet high with McKinley's black bordered picture in the centre. The local committee headed by Ex-Secretary of State William R. Day and Judge Grant was on the platform.

All about were symbols of mourning. The approach of the train was unheralded. No whistle was blown, no bell was rung. In absolute silence it rolled into the station. Even the black hooded locomotive gave no sound. There was no panting of the exhaust pipes. The energy that brought it seemed to have been absolutely expended. At the mere sight of the train the people who had been waiting there for hours were greatly affected. Women sobbed and men wept. For a full minute after it had stopped, no one appeared. Judge Day and his committee moved slowly down the platform in front of the line of soldiers to the catafalque car and waited. Suddenly Abner McKinley, in deep black, his face tense and drawn, appeared in the vestibule of the car next that conveying the remains, and a moment later Dr. Rixey appeared, half carrying a frail and broken form. It was Mrs. McKinley arrayed in the deepest mourning. Beneath the heavy black veil she held her handkerchief to her eyes and her slight figure shook convulsively. Gently she was lifted from the car, supported by Dr. Rixey and Abner McKinley, and was practically carried to a carriage in waiting at the east end of the station. The door of the carriage was closed and Mrs. McKinley was hurriedly driven to her former home on North Market street, which she had left only two weeks ago with her distinguished husband in the full vigor of manhood. Colonel Bingham, the president's aid, then gave directions for the removal of the casket from the car.

Meantime President Roosevelt, with his brother-in-law, Captain Cowles, of the navy, in full uniform, at his side, had descended from the car ahead of that occupied by Mrs. McKinley. The members of the cabinet, Secretary Cortelyou, Governor Nash, Lieutenant Governor Caldwell and Judge Marshall J. Williams, of the supreme court, representing the three branches of the state government of Ohio, followed.

The sad procession was then formed.

It was headed by Colonel Bingham, in full uniform and a bow of crepe at the hilt of his sheathed sword. Following and immediately proceeding the casket was the local committee, headed by Judge Day. Then came the soldiers and sailors.

The shrillness of the bugle had given the first signs to the waiting multitude outside the station that the casket was approaching. Instantly the long lines of soldiers became rigid, standing at present arms. The black horses of the Cleveland troop, immediately facing the station, stood motionless, their riders with sabres lowered. Slowly through the entrance came the stalwart soldiers and sailors with solemn tread bearing aloft the flag-covered coffin of the man this city loved so well. As it came into view a great sigh went up from the dense throng.

Immediately following the hearse came the carriage of President Roosevelt, who rode with his brother-in-law, Captain Cowles, of the navy; the latter in full uniform, and Secretary Gage. The carriages of the other members of the cabinet and those who had been near the late President in public life, were lined out for a half a mile. Back of them marched the National Guards of Ohio, regiment after regiment, in platoon front formation and filling the broad thoroughfare from side to side.

Sad as was the procession which bore the body to the court house where it lay in state Wednesday afernoon it could not compare with the infinite sadness of that endless double line of broken-hearted people who streamed steadily through the dimly lighted corridors of the building from the time the coffin was opened until it was taken home to the sorrowing widow at nightfall. They stepped softly lest their footfalls wake their friend from his last long sleep. Tears came unbidden to wet the bier.

Perhaps it was the great change that had come upon the countenance which moved them more than the sight of the familiar features. The signs of discoloration which appeared upon the brow and cheeks Tuesday at the state ceremonial in the rotunda of the capitol at Washington had deepened. The lips had became livid.

When the body was taken away thousands were still in line and the committee in charge of the arrangements was appealed to, to allow a further opportunity to review the remains today before they are taken to church. But this had to be denied to them and the casket may never be opened again.

The funeral services took place this afternoon at 1.30 o'clock at the First Methodist Episcopal church of which the martyred president was a communicant and trustee. They were brief by the expressed wish of the family. Rev. O. B. Mulligan, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, in which president and Mrs. McKinley were married thirty years ago, will make the opening prayer. Dr. John Hall, of Trinity Lutheran church, will make the first Scriptural reading, and Dr. E. P. Herbruck, of Trinity Reformed church, the second. Dr. C. E. Manchester, pastor of the late president's church, will deliver the only address. A quartette will sing "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and another quartette will render Cardinal Newman's hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light."

An imposing procession, consisting of many of the Grand Army of the Republic posts in the state, the National Guard of Ohio, details of regulars from all branches of the service, fraternal, social and civic organizations and representations of commercial bodies from all over the country, the governors of several states with their staffs, the house and senate of the United States and the cabinet and the president of the United States, will follow the remains to West Lawn cemetery, where they will be placed in a receiving vault awaiting the time when they will be laid in the grave beside the two dead children who were buried years ago.

CANTON, O., September 20.—As the time approached for bearing the body of the dead president from the McKinley home to the church, the little cottage on North Market street was the centre of a concourse of people. Regiment after regiment of soldiers, acting as guards, were in triple lines from curbs back to the lawns. The walks had been cleared and the multitude took refuge on the great sweep of lawns where they formed a solid mass of humanity surging forward to the lines of soldiers.

In front of the McKinley cottage were drawn up the two rigid files of body bearers—eight sailors from the navy and eight soldiers from the army—waiting to go in and take up the casket. Just at 1 o'clock the black chargers of the Cleveland Troop swept down the street, their riders four abreast, in their brilliant Hussar uniform, with flags bound in crepe and every sabre hilt bearing its fluttering emblem of mourning. Their coming was the signal for the approach of President Roosevelt and the members of the cabinet. The presidential party moved up the walk to the entrance of the house and formed in a group to the left.

The president's face looked very grave and he stood there silently with uncovered head awaiting the body of the dead chieftain. Beside him stood Secretary Gage, Secretary Root, Secretary Wilson and Secretary Hitchcock and just across Attorney General Knox, Postmaster General Smith, Assistant Secretary of State Hill, representing Secretary Hay, and Secretary Cortelyou.

Extending further down the walk was the guard of honor, the ranking generals of the army on the right and the chief figures of the navy on the left. Lieutenant General Miles, in the full uniform of his high rank, with sword at side and band of crepe about his arm, stood alongside the members of the cabinet, and with him were Major General Brooke, Major General Otis, Major General MacArthur and Brigadier General Gillespie. Across from them were ranged Rear Admiral Dewey, ranking head of the navy, Rear Admiral O'Neil, Rear Admiral Kenney and Brigadier General Heywood, the latter commander-in-chief of the marine corps.

Just inside the gate stood the civilian honorary court, in double line, including Governor Nash, of Ohio; Governor Caldwell, Judge Williams, of the Ohio supreme court; Henry B. McFarland, president of the commissioners of the District of Columbia; Mayor Diehl, of Buffalo; Judge Day, the lifelong friend of the president, Mr. Milburn, at whose house he died, and others in civil life near and dear to the dead chief. As the presidential party came up the black chargers of troop A swung into battalion front, facing the house, and the long line of flashing sabers advanced to salute.

Now the deep toned wail of the church bells began and every steeple in Canton gave forth its dolorous plaint. It was 1:15 o'clock and the time had come for taking up the body. A brief private service had been held within the darkened chamber, Dr. Manchester saying a prayer while the relatives gathered around and Mrs. McKinley listened from the half open door of her adjoining room. The double file of body bearers now stepped into the room and raising the flag wrapped casket to their shoulders bore it through the open entrance. A solemn hush fell upon the multitude as the bearers advanced with measured tread. Not a bugle blast went up; not a strain of the hymns the dead ruler had loved so well. The scene was majestic in its silence. As the casket was borne along above the line of heads could be seen enfolding Stars and Stripes and on top great masses of white roses and delicate lavender orchids. Tenderly the coffin was committed to the hearse and the silence was broken as the order to march passed from officer to officer.

The great procession now took up its mournful journey, passing under the sweep of giant arches robed in black between two living tides of humanity massed along the streets, covering housetops and windows. The church bells still were tolling, mingling their dismal tones with the cadence of the funeral dirge. Preceding the funeral car and forming the first division rode General Torrence, national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, with a long line of grizzled veterans. After them moved the National Guard of the state of Ohio, platoon after platoon, under command of General Charles A. Dick. Then came the funeral cortege, the president's favorite command, troop A riding ahead. At the head of each of the coal black horses drawing the hearse marched a soldier. The heads of the horses bore tall black plumes and over them were thrown long palls of black.

At either side of the hearse marched the guard of military and naval honor, the generals on the right, led by General Miles, and the admirals on the left, led by Admiral Farquhar. Then came the long line of carriages for the relatives and friends and after them the innumerable military and civic organizations that had assembled to pay this last honor to the fallen chief. In the line were division after division of Knights Templar, Knights of Pythias, Masons, Odd Fellows and representatives of beneficial orders, chambers of commerce, as well as delegations of citizens from cities and towns throughout the state and country.

At the church entrance were drawn up deep files of soldiers, with bayonets advanced keeping a clear area for the advancing casket and the long train of mourners. The hearse halted while President Roosevelt and members of the cabinet alighted.

The members of the Loyal Legion, Governor Nash, Governor McMillian, of Tennessee and Governor Longino, of Mississippi, each with his full uniformed staff, had already entered the church from the west entrance and had filled up the most westerly of the sections of pews. The members of the senate and house of representatives had preceded the coffin through the door at the side of the chancel through which it entered.

All had risen as the coffin was borne in. The generals and admirals of the army and navy, who comprise the guard of honor, in their uniforms, followed the body and occupied the first pew on either side of the centre aisle. President Roosevelt and the cabinet came slowly after. All were in black and wore black gloves.

Secretary Cortelyou, Justice McKenna, of the supreme court; John M. Milburn and John N Scatchard, of Buffalo, and several others, took seats immediately in the rear of the cabinet. Then followed the relatives, who occupied the tier of pews in the left of the centre aisle.

After these had been seated the poor leading into the Sunday school was opened and the seats arraned below, as well as those in the balcony, were soon filled with the representatives of various organizations and the fellow townsmen of the martyred president. Conspicuous were the survivors of the Twenty-third Ohio, McKinley's old regiment, who brought into the church the tattered battle flags the regiment had carried throughout the civil war. It was after 2 o'clock when the quartette arose and lifted up their voices with the touching words of "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." When the sound of the last line had died away Rev. O. B. Milligan, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, in which President and Mrs. McKinley were married thirty years ago, offered a fervent prayer.

Dr. John A. Hall, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran church, then read from the Bible the beautiful nineteenth Psalm, Rev. E. P. Herbuck verses 41-58 of the twenty-fifth chapter of 1 Corinthians. The quartette than sang Cardinal Newman's grand hymn, the Beautiful words floating through all the church, "Lead, Kindly Light."

Dr. C. E. Manchester delivered an address, which lasted twenty-four minutes on the life of the late president and the lessons taught by his noble character and death. Bishop I. W. Joyce, of Minneapolis, followed with a brief prayer, and the services were concluded with the singing of the hymn which president McKinley repeated on his death bed, "Nearer, My God to Thee, Nearer to Thee." The entire congregation arose and joined in the last stanza. Father Valtman, of Chicoga, chaplain of the Twenty-ninth infantry, pronounced the benediction. Then the notes of the organ again arose. The coffin was taken up and borne from the church. The relatives and those in official life went out in the order they had entered.

The line of the funeral march from the church to the cemetery was about one and one-half miles in length.

Bishop Joyce, of Minneapolis, then read the burial service of the Methodist Episcopal church slowly, but in a voice that could be heard distinctly by all who were grouped around the vault.

The last of the procession passed the bier at 5.45 and then orders were given by Captain Biddle that the cemetery should be cleared. The order was quickly carried out and the president was left in the care of his guard of honor,

Will Have McKinley Pictures.

When President McKinley was making his address at Buffalo just before he was shot a moving picture machine was taking a picture of the scene. When the shooting took place the machine was quickly got ready and excellent pictures of the excitement and scenes following that sad event were secured. The machine was taken to Buffalo at the suggestion of Lyman H. Howe of Wilkesbarre. Mr. Howe has made a great strike in securing them.

Death Claims Mrs. William Foster, of State College.

Mrs. William Foster, one of the best known and respected citizens of State College, died at her home in that place Friday morning after a lingering illness, in the 80th year of her life. Mrs. Foster had been an invalid for the past year or more but rheumatic troubles and infirmaties of old age hastened her death. Her long life was one of christian piety and noble work, and her gentleness of manner, her generosity of heart and her sympathetic and amiable character endeared her to the hearts of all who knew her. Mrs. Foster was a life long member of the Presbyterian church, and during the years of her activity was a consistant and devoted laborer in her Master's vineyard. Belonging to one of the oldest and most prominent families in the county, Mrs. Foster enjoyed the love, respect and esteem of an extended circle of friends and acquaintances to whom her death will come with sorrow and regret. She is survived by her husband, the venerable William Foster, and two sons and one daughter: Charles, who lives at State College; John, a resident of Alabama, and Mary at home.

The funeral occurred Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment in the Branch cemetery.

Death of C. C. Taylor.

The venerable Curtin C. Taylor died at his home at Pleasant Gap Thursday afternoon after an illness that had begun only on the preceding Tuesday with some trouble with his liver. Though he had been in failing health for a year or more it was not until Tuesday that he was compelled to take his bed.

Deceased was a very well known man in this vicinity and was a son of the late George Taylor, having been born in the famous old tavern in the narrows above Pleasant Gap, when his father ran that old-time road house, about seventy-seven years ago. He was married to Miss Harriet Noll, who survives him with their children, George, Irvin, Mrs. Mary Griffith and Mrs. Carrie Armstrong.

A more kindly, straightforward gentleman than was Mr Taylor we have never known. His long years of service to the Turnpike company gave him an acquaintance that was wider than those of most men and his ever courteous manner made friends of all who came in contact with him. He was a type of the old school and his passing marks the departure of another whose place can never be filled.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and interment made in the Lutheran cemetery at Pleasant Gap.

Eyes and Nose Ran Water.

C. G. Archer, of Brewer, Maine, says: "I have had catarrh for several years. Water would run from my eyes and nose for days at a time. About four months ago I was induced to try Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder, and since using the wonderful remedy I have not had an attack. It relieves in ten minues." 50 cents.—9

Did Fireworks Display Give a Warning of What Was to Occur?

George Goodman, a well known traveling man, in talking to acquaintances about President McKinley's assassination, relates a peculiar incident that was noticed in Buffalo recently.

During a fireworks display on the lake one evening there was one design showing the familiar face of Roosevelt. Underneath the picture was the name "Theodore Roosevelt," and under the name were the words "Our Vice President." When the design lighted up the word "vice" went out immediately; a few seconds later the word "our" burned out, but the face of Roosevelt and the word "President" burned the full time, six minutes.

Mr. Goodman states that at the time nothing was thought of it, but the assassination and the swearing in of Roosevelt as president has recalled the incident with startling significance.—Philipsburg Journal.

Neuralgia.

The Prayer of a Nerve for More Blood.

Neuralgia may attack any part of the body but most frequently occurs where the nerves are most abundant.

In the head,
In the face.
Sometimes the heart nerves seem to twist
Twinging rheumatic pains of the extremities
Sharp and intense at times
In the intervals dull and heavy.

Neuralgia is the result of impoverished blood caused by impairment of the nerves—a lack of nerve force.

It is a disease of the nerve centers, and the pains accompanying it are a prayer for better nourishment. They are the danger signals which warn you against a total collapse of the nervous system.

Liniments and all external applications can only give temporary relief. Permanent cure cannot possibly come until the nerve centers are thoroughly revitalized and reinvigorated by Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. The beneficial effects of this great nerve restorative are felt thrilling through the nerve fibres as week by week and month by month the nerve force of the body is restored. Women afflicted with diseases peculiar to their sex are frequently great sufferers from neuralgia. Dr. Chase's Nerve Pills positively cures both these disorders by filling the nervous system with new vigor and life. 50 cents a box at all dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. The genuine has portrait and signature of Dr. A. W Chase on each package.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

In convention at Bellefonte. A large attendance of Commissioners and visitors—Interesting program observed.

The fifteenth annual convention of the State Association of County Commissioners of Pennsylvania was called to order in the Court House Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock by Chairman F. J. Lott, of Susquehanna county. The executive committee having held a meeting in the Commissioners office at 9 o'clock their report was asked for and in the absence of the chairman of the committee J. C Meyer, Esq. of Bellefonte read the report which was merely a recommendation for the election of officers of the association for the ensuing year as follows: President J. C. Meyer, Esq. Bellefonte; Vice Presidents, S. S. Patterson, of Fayette county and Jacob M. Henderson, of Lancaster county; Secretary's O. R. Brownfield, of Fayette; A. W. Brungard, of Clinton; D. K. Graber, of Montgomery; W. P. Devine, of Adams; W. S. Hostler, of Blair; Treasurer, R. F. Hopwood, of Fayette. The report of the committee was adopted and J. C. Meyer was unanimously elected President, whereupon he assumed the duties of his office and after a graceful little speech of thanks proceeded with the election of the remaining officers in accordance with the recommendations of the executive committee. Upon the suggestion of the presiding officer the session then adjourned to meet at 2 o'clock p. m.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order by President Meyer, roll was called and 83 delegates representing 23 counties responded.

Hon. William C. Heinle delivered the address of welcome in his usual happy and pleasant manner and Alexander C. White, Esq, of Jefferson county, responded on behalf of the association. After the appointment of the various committees the program for the afternoon was proceeded with which included an interesting discussion on the subject. "How to make our prisons places of reform, rather than schools of vice," introduced by T. P. Sloan, commissioner of Washington county, and "Should sheriffs have any profit in the boarding of prisoners?" Opened by Commissioner W. D. Reamer, of Westmoreland county.

Commissioner Samuel S. Patterson, of Fayette county, read an interesting and valuable paper on "Tramps and Criminals."

Miss Ida Orris was engaged to report the proceedings of the convention. For the amusement and pleasure of the visiting Commissioners the local board arranged a band concert for the evening in the public square by the Coleville Band, at 7:30 o'clock. At 9 o'clock the electric fountain was exhibited at the Spring under the direction of Electrician Williams of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co.

The second days session of the annual convention of the State Association of County Commissioners was called to order Wednesday morning at 9.30 o'clock by President J. C. Meyer. Over one hundred delegates were in attendance, quite a number having arrived Tuesday night.

The speakers and the subjects discussed were as follows: W. D. Reamer, county commissioner of Westmoreland county, J. P. Hale Jenkins Esq., of Montgomery county and others discussed the subject "Should Sheriffs have any profit in the boarding of prisoners?"

Dr. Charles S. Smith, of Dauphin county, and others talked upon the subject "Would the enactment of a law be advisable making taxes a lien upon personal property to the effect that in case a levy is made by virtue of an execution upon personal property liable to distress for payment of taxes, the tax collector upon making claim therefore shall be entitled to first be paid from the proceeds of sale of such property upon said execution?"

"Is it advisable that the annual Meeting of the State Association of County Commissioners be continued in the absence of the enactment of a law at the next meeting of the legislature making reasonable expenses therefore a proper charge for the respective counties to pay?" was hotly discussed by Wm. Davis Esq., of Cambria county, and others.

Capt. Long then presented the claims of Gettysburg as the place of meeting for the State convention next year. The convention then unanimously decided to accept this invitation to Gettysburg and the time was left to the executive committee to decide.

At 12:30 o'clock the County Commissioners and their wives, families and friends were taken to State College on a special train over the Bellefonte Central Road. The afternoon passed very pleasantly taking in the very interesting sights to be seen there and at 5 o'clock a luncheon was served in the College Armory.

Interesting speeches were made at the luncheon by Hon. A. E. Sisson, state senator from Erie county; William Davis Esq., solicitor of Cambria county; J. P. Hale Jenkins, of Montgomery county and Samuel S. Patterson, commissioner of Fayette county.

The visitors returned to this city at 6:30 p. m. very much pleased with their trip. The concluding session of the State convention will be held this morning.

Deemster

On Saturday night, Sept. 28th at Garman's Opera House Manager Melville Daniels will present Hall Caine's "Deemster" which has been dramatized by Chas. W Chase. It is a play in four acts and deals with all the principal scenes from the book. It is most interesting to see in the first act the children who as the play progresses grow to men and women. Dan Mylrea is a most unfortunate character whom all will sympathize with and his cousin and sweetheart Mona will at once by her loving manner win the hearts of all. The "Deemster" is positive of success.
